Notices

Rob McEwin employment change

I wish to announce that from April 6th, Rob will be moving from his current 0.4 workload, to a 0.2 workload. That will reduce his formal duties by a day a week. People who know them understand that both Rob and Phyllis have been working very hard on behalf of our Parish. And the interim role that Rob is conducting has lasted longer than expected. So it's understandable that Rob and Phyllis want to step back a little at this point. That's especially so as Rob seeks to extend still further the period where his cancer is under control.

This is a good point to honour them both - Rob for the variety of roles he has taken on, from youth church ministry to leading our interaction with mission agencies, as well as preaching and his long-standing pastoral ministry through Milpara and elsewhere. Phyllis has shouldered a considerable pastoral load, and has great experience and skill visiting and caring for our people. I particularly respect the wisdom and experience they both bring in a variety of areas. Of course they're not going anywhere. But it's good for us to know that from April 6th, they will only be on the rosters with formal tasks every other week.

Psalms Series continues

For the rest of March we will be continuing a series on the Psalms in church. For those with enthusiasm, we are providing an opportunity to hear all of the Psalms read aloud after the 10.30 am service on Sundays in March. For a helpful overview of the book of Psalms, you might like to view this fine video by the Bible Project:
